Globalization and Women in Coastal Communities in Tanzania

Author(s)
Marilyn Porter, Rosemarie Mwaipopo, Richard Faustine, Max Mzuma

Abstract
Marilyn Porter, Rosemarie Mwaipopo, Richard Faustine and Max Mzuma draw on data collected in two fishing communities in Tanzania to illustrate the global nature of the issues that women and coastal communities face. Coastal communities, such as Somanga and Songosongo, often suffer disproportionately from processes of interactive restructuring, and women are especially at risk.

Keywords
Fishing
Sexual/gender division of labour
Household strategies
Seaweed farming
Octopus